Campus Architecture Theme Continues at Stanford in October

On Saturday, October 11th SAH members will convene at Stanford University. The event will feature a lecture by Paul Turner, Stanford University Wattis Professor of Art. Professor Turner is the author of Campus: An American Planning Tradition, and he is the co-author of three books about the University including, The Founders and The Architects: The Design of Stanford University.

After a business meeting and lunch, David Neuman, University Architect, will host a tour of the campus. We will end the day with a late afternoon reception.

Ideas Sought for 2004 Meetings

NCCSAH is seeking ideas for our Spring and Fall 2004 meetings. Please bring your thoughts regarding upcoming events to the Stanford meeting. We have an offer by a Fresno resident to have an upcoming event in the Valley. We have also discussed a focused day in Locke or an outing to Eureka. We would like to line up the locations for the next two meetings so that the planning can begin. If you have ideas, but can not attend the October meeting at Stanford, please e-mail either Bridget Maley (bridget@argsf.com) or Ward Hill (whill@pacbell.net).

Thanks in advance for your ideas!

The Hoover Tower at Stanford University is one of many historic buildings that will be included on the October 11th tour.

Congratulations to Michael Crowe of the National Park Service on the occasion of his recent retirement. Best Wishes to Michael, a long-time member of the preservation community in Northern California and NCCSAH's past preservation officer!
